Roy Porterfield Named to Cedar Rapids Civil Rights Commission

Roy Porterfield, a long-time member of the local GLBT community, has been appointed to the Cedar Rapids Civil Rights Commission. He was nominated for the position by outgoing Mayor Lee Clancey and voted in unanimously by the City Council at its December 19th meeting. Porterfield's three-year term began in January.

The nine member Commission is charged with making civil rights recommendations to the City Council, and with enforcing existing civil rights law. The Cedar Rapids law bans discrimination based on sexual orientation, race, religion, gender, national origin and age in the areas of employment, housing, credit, education, and public accommodations (such as restaurants).

Persons who believe they have suffered illegal discrimination in Cedar Rapids should call the Civil Rights Commission at 319-286-5036. After confirmation that a complaint falls under the law, each case is assigned to a commissioner and a staff member for investigation. The Commission can order remedies such as reinstatement to a job or monetary compensation.

Porterfield is looking forward to his term on the Commission.

"It looks like a lot more time and work than I expected," he said recently, "but it should be very interesting. The commissioners are amazingly diverse and include a recent immigrant from West Africa and a sight-impaired retiree, for example."

He is thought to be the first openly gay person on the Civil Rights Commission. Porterfield is also the first openly gay member of the Iowa Judicial Nominations Commission, the body that selects Iowa District Court judges. He was appointed to a six-year term by Gov. Tom Vilsack.

Family Night at the GLRC

So it's another evening at home with the family. You would like to get out of the house, but what do you do with the kids? And you're not in the mood for a busy bar. Is there anything out there for you to do?

The GLRC has the answer for you. After listening to concerns from the Community via emails and surveys, the GLRC heard there was a need for something that the whole family could do together. So, beginning in March, the GLRC will be hosting a family night, where families can get together and go for pizza, movies, or games. Every outing will be different, and each one will be a great way for you and your family to meet other families, to share ideas, and have some fun. Families of all sizes are welcome. Come hang out and visit this first get-together on March 16 from 7:00 PM – 11:00 PM at the GLRC. We're located at 305 Second Street SE in the Paramount Building, Suite 324.

GLRC Mission Statement

Our purpose is to provide an information and referral center for the mutual support of gays, lesbians, bisexuals, and transgendered persons, their families, friends, and allies, and the community at large.

Joe Wilson Says Goodbye

Long-time Iowa City resident Joe Wilson says goodbye to Eastern Iowa. Joe was involved with several different local organizations, but is well known for being the founder and Director of Flierman Resources, a non-profit organization that started in October of 1998. Joe's free e-mail service, IC-GLBT-EVENTS, was a list service which the GLRC hosted. This list kept the 538 subscribers up to date on GLBT events and issues in eastern Iowa. Joe sent e-mail alerts for each event as it drew near, from a list of events as far as one year away, then thirty days, one week, and the day before the event. The absence of Joe's daily e-mails will definitely be noticed.

Joe states in a letter to his family and friends that he is leaving Iowa City to return to Arnolds Park. This is due to some changes in Joe's family and wanting to remain focused on his 2002 goals: to finally organize his past, enjoy the present, and to plan his future. Joe states that he just simply kept too busy to accomplish his goals while living in Iowa City. Joe states that after getting settled in Arnolds Park, he plans on getting involved with his local Community, including greater involvement at the state level with issues that are dear to him.

Joe, from the Cedar Rapids GLRC, we wish you well and thank you for all your great work.

Tret Fure at CSPS

Tret Fure (pronounced "fury") is a legendary singer-songwriter-guitarist in folk and women's music. For 30 years, she has been performing at popular live music venues across the country, on cruises, and at major folk music festivals, all the while collaborating on, writing, and producing nine recordings that cover a myriad of musical genres.

Fure's discography begins with Mousetrap with Spencer Davis (1970), continues with four solo rock recordings (1973-1990, her self-titled debut produced by Little now an entrepreneur/marketeer with her own clothing line and store, this woman does it all. Fure is a leader, a legend, an icon. And at 50, she proves that she's going strong and doesn't plan to stop anytime soon.

Helms Pledges to Make AIDS a Priority

by Ann Rostow

Gay.com / PlanetOut.com Network

Speaking to an audience of 800 Christian AIDS activists on Wednesday afternoon in Washington D. C., Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he had been "too lax, too long in doing something really significant" about AIDS.

"I'm so ashamed that I have done so little," he said.

The retiring lawmaker, one of the staunchest conservatives in public office, pledged: "I am not going to lay it aside on my agenda for the remaining months I have in office."

Helms's remarks, said Human Rights Campaign (HRC) spokesman David Smith, were

"intriguing, coming from an individual who has done more to ensure that the disease has gone unchecked ... and done more harm to people with AIDS than any other person."

Helms has earned a zero rating from the gay rights lobbying group, and Smith adds, "you can add four exclamation points" to the score.

Helms "has thwarted at every turn an effective prevention strategy for curtailing the spread of AIDS," says Smith. "In the mid-eighties, the government knew how the disease was spread, but because of the extreme anti-gay prejudice of Jesse Helms and others like him, the government did not execute a prevention campaign to teach people how not to become infected, and as a result, people died." Jesse Helms, says Smith, "was primarily responsible" for the government inaction that allowed the epidemic to run rampant.

Yesterday's mea culpa was pronounced at the Prescription for Hope conference, organized by Franklin Graham and the Samaritan's Purse relief agency that Graham heads.

"Sermons about how to avoid AIDS are good but provide no solace to those 40 million already infected with the virus," says Graham, son of the evangelist Billy Graham, on the conference Web site. "As the church of Christ, we must reach out with open arms in love, encouragement and compassion rather than condemnation."

Helms made no reference to sexual orientation during his talk, instead noting that there is "no substitute for the joy brought by strong and healthy marriages," and instructing the audience "not to hesitate to share this truth," with others.
